Total:	269,640		$1,066,352.20	$1,087,878.30

NOTES: (1) Total Revenues includes the application of surplus funds held by the City Clerk from the previous election (this applied to Andrew Haydon only).

It does not include refunds of nomination fees (some candidates erroneously listed such refunds as campaign revenue).

(2) Total Expenses includes expenses excluded from the spending limit. In Jim Watson's Financial Statement these excluded expenses amounted to $155,453.04, leaving $446,342.02 in campaign expenses subject to the spending limit.

(3) Surplus (Deficit) is calculated from current campaign revenues & expenses.

NOTES: (1) Financial Statements identify contributions by goods & services: these have been allocated by donor type i.e. individuals under $100, individuals $100 or more, corporations $100 or more, unions $100 or more, in the table above.

(2) Andrew Haydon's Financial Statement indicates that his campaign revenues came from the previous election surplus ($2,103.53) held by the City Clerk.

(3) Jim Watson's Financial Statement identifies $11,900 in contributions returned to contributors, however, his Financial Statement does not identify from which categories (contribution from candidate, individuals less than $100, individuals $100 or more, corporations $100 or more, unions $100 or more) these contributions were returned. As a result, his total mayoral campaign contributions are $11,900 less than the sum of its components.

Samuel WRIGHT	-	-	-	-	-	-

NOTE: Each candidate is personally responsible for his or her campaign deficit. Therefore, personal cost is the sum of a candidate's contribution to own campaign plus campaign deficit, less any contributions refunded to the candidate. Campaign surpluses do not accrue to the candidate, but are held by the City Clerk for future elections.

NOTE: Each candidate is personally responsible for his or her campaign deficit. Therefore, personal cost is the sum of a candidate's contribution to own campaign plus campaign deficit, less any contributions refunded to the candidate. Campaign surpluses do not accrue to the candidate, but are held by the City Clerk for future elections.

NOTE: (1) Each candidate is personally responsible for his or her campaign deficit. Therefore personal cost is the sum of a candidate's contribution to own campaign plus campaign deficit, less any contributions refunded to the candidate. Campaign surpluses do not accrue to the candidate, but are held by the City Clerk for future elections.

(2) Terry Kilrea's campaign (Ward 7) claimed $12,476.36 as the candidate's personal contribution to his campaign, and listed no other campaign donors. However, the auditor for that campaign was unable to verify if indeed these were the candidate's own contributions to the Kilrea campaign.
